The government's difficulty arises out of the apparent so-lidifying of opposition opinion, with the Social Credit group led by Robert Thompson uncertain as to whether it will remain the government's "saviour," as it has been in most of this session's previous tests of confidence.

Education's New Dimensions

two highly important commission reports on British education parallel in significant particulars the findings of similar recent reports on this continent and in British Columbia.

Here and in Britain thoughtful men, following intensive study, have come to the same conclusion. It is that modern living-and the welfare of the nation-demands broader educational opportunities for our younger generation and that to provide those opportunities a great deal more money must be spent on education at different levels

The Robbins commission, in a voluminous report produced after three years' exhaustive study, says for Britain's higher education what others have been saying in other nations: that a country cannot afford to neglect its "brains."

To avoid neglect it has to provide more universities to house more students who must be given wider variety of courses and assured an adequate-and not currently apparent-continuous supply of good teachers. All this adds up to vast public expenditure on higher

In effect, Dr. John B. Macdon-ald, president of UBC, told the gov-ernment and public of British Columbia the same earlier this year in his report on higher education here and a plan for the future. That plan called for a view of higher education in new dimensions-financially so high that sections of the public and some politicians experienced a touch of vertigo.

The Robbins report tells Britain that this massive expansion of higher education is essential to avert a possible "serious decline" in the country's world standing and that anything less than it recommends endangers the national wellbeing.

Dr. Macdonald, dealing with a part of Canada abundantly supplied with natural resources, in contradistinction to Britain, feared the same result if British Columbia's people were not equipped, by higher education, to exploit these resources The same point was made sanely. here last Wednesday by Dr. A. I'T IS NOT SURPRISING THAT the necessity of broad studies of the humanities to accompany learning in the scientific fields.

This is by no means radical thought in the educational field. Similar conclusions have been expressed almost everywhere educators meet in the English-speaking world and beyond.

It is no more of a coincidence that parallel thinking should be found in the realm of higher education than that similar viewpoints should have been expressed recently in connection with secondary education and lower grades.

In the same week or two that British Columbians were absorbing provincial education department plans to give broader courses for the so-called "non-academic," with an emphasis on vocational instruction, the Newsom commission was proposing the same for Britain.

There, as here, recognition is given to the fact that a very large proportion of young people in school are not suited for advancement to the conventional university. Yet these same young people need more education—and better facilities in which to acquire it-than exist for them at present.

The Newsom commission wants schools to replace inadequate ones in some of the more depressed areas and even in some of those regions which are considered more fortunate in Britain.

It wants instruction that will be value, practical and educational, to the boy or girl who is not cut out for a career aimed at a university degree. And it wants a system that will produce good teachers in constant supply.

Here, as at the university level, is common ground among educa-

It all adds up to what most people consider a staggering increase in expenditure-and it is unavoidable, in the opinion of experts, because the times in which we live make pressing demands on the new generation which the schools of the past and present do not meet.

The practical new dimension in education, as these various reports indicate, is money, much more money than governments once thought adequate for their school and university systems.

The alternative has been defined by the Robbins, the Newsoms, the Macdonalds, the Truemans, and even the British Columbia Department of Education, which is caught scientific age. And each recognized in its own financial squeeze.

DREMIER KHRUSHCHEV'S AN- idea of a manned flight to the moon nouncement that Soviet Russia is not "at present" planning manned flights to the moon seems to have stirred up some rather odd reactions in the United States. Although a strong body of American opinion, both scientific and non-scientific, holds that the United States plan to put a man on the moon by 1970 is designed more for prestige than scientific purposes, top administration officials reportedly reacted to the Khrushchev announcement by saying it had strengthened America's desire to go ahead. The director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administra-tion declared the American effort should go ahead independently of any action Russia might take.

Another official felt that Khrushchev's statement was simply "strategic move" by the Russians to capitalize on the fact that American public support for the program has been slackening.

But in all this early reaction there was no affirmation that the moon program-which will cost $20 billions or more—is a worthwhile effort from the scientific standpoint.

It is generally agreed that the decision announced by Khrushchev and bearing in mind that he said "at present" they had given up the

-has been more or less forced on the Soviet leaders by economic events. Russia, apparently, cannot right now risk diverting its economic effort from supplying an increasing population with the goods and services which are needed and being demanded. It is not possible to exact the sacrifices from the Russian people that were exacted so ruthlessly and harshly during the early days of Communism.

By the same token, there are many Americans now protesting the sacrifices which they, as a nation, will have to make in order to carry out the man-on-the-moon program and they want assurances that the program will bring returns as great as if the billions it will cost were on more down - to - earth research. Despite the assurance of the Washington space officials that the program will go on as planned, it seems inevitable that the critics of the program, and particularly the many members of Congress who are worried by the high cost involved, will be inclined to call for a new look at the plan to put an American on the moon within the next seven years. Or is this is an appropriate time to renew the let's-do-it-together invitation to Russia?

Despite the violent objections to the Canadian plan voiced by U.S. officials who fear it will result in a drop in employment in the American auto parts industry, the Canadian car manufacturer's seem to be taking it in their stride. E. H. Walker, president of General Mo-tors of Canada Ltd. and president of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, indicated that the industry would make an immediate art in implementing the program.

If this move is successful it will undoubtedly prove to be only the first in a series of moves by the Liberal government designed to de-crease Canadian reliance on foreign manufactured goods and to build up secondary industry in Canada.

The one factor which is so far unknown is what the cost of the program might be in terms of higher prices. ### Watershed for Italian Democracy?

TURNING POINT in Italian democracy is likely to be reached during current Socialist Party's 35th Con-

REPORT FROM ROME

Four months ago, the Socialists rejected the terms proposed by the Christian Democrats and their partners (the Social ocratic and Republican Parties) to enter a left-of-centre coalition government. The negotiations for the "opening to the Left" were suspended to let the Socialists thrash out their ideas at their party congress and Signor Leone's caretaker government was set up on the understanding that it would keep the door open for the resumption of talks.

It was hoped that time would work in favor of the "apertura" and that the more intransigent spirits in the Socialist nd Christian Democrat parties would change their minds. In both camps there a majority of moderates headed by the party secretaries, Signor Nenni for the Socialists, and Signor Moro for the Christian Democrats, who believe that a final breakdown of the negotiations would lead to a real crisis for Italian

Economic Trouble

Economic difficulties which were apparent at the beginning of the summer, a continuous rise in wholesale and retail prices, and a widening gap in the trade balance have been accentuated, while a powerful section of conservative business powerful seculo of the "truce" to dump large quantities of shares and "export" tens of billions of lire to Switzerland. This sabotage of the economy has been supported by a press campaign ascribing lack of confidence in the public to the misdeeds of Signor Fanfani's left-centre which nationalized electricity and to fear that the Socialists may nationalize other industries and confiscate property. Above all this clamor came the voice of the Liberal Party leader, Signor Malagodi, prophesying that the Socialists in government would open the door to Com-munism. To add to this, there has been yet another scandal, the Ippolito affair, in which a brilliant exponent of the non Catholic left-centre has been involved in peculation.

Finally, the tragedy of Vajont, the dam which caused 3,000 people to perish in Italy's worst disaster since the Mes-sina earthquake, has redounded to the advantage of the Communists who foresaw the dangers, and to the discredit of both the former and the present admins-trators of the recently nationalized dam,

No Gain

In foreign affairs, the last four months have brought no advantage to the sup-porters of the Left-Centre. The end of Adenauer regime and the prospect of a Labor Government in Britain offset by the imminent need for a decision on multi-lateral defence. This is a tricky question for the Socialists who do not want to find themselves in a Government whose first act in foreign policy might be to open the populous Italian ports to surface ships carrying Polaris missiles.

It may be too soon to say whether the will to reach agreement in the Socialist, as in the Christian Democrat Party, is stronger than the interests and inhibitions that tend to keep the two camps apart. Over the years, the Socialist Party as a whole has made progress to-wards the "apertura." With its 495,000 members, 87 Deputies and 44 Senators, it is divided between a majority of moderates (about 58 per cent) under Nenni in favor of assuming government responsibility if the terms are acceptable, and an extreme Left, which while no longer outright hostile to the principle of collaboration, will be very choosy about the

The Congress, in fact, has been asked to decide on what terms the Socialist Party is disposed to collaborate with the Christian Democrats and other Left-Centre parties for a period of stable government lasting at least five years. It will examine a short-term plan to meet immediate financial and economic difficulties, and a long-term program of structural reform.

Asks Clear Pledges

Unlike Sig. Nenni who thinks the difficulties should be slurred over, the party's deputy leader, Signor Riccardo Lombardi, classified as a moderate, believes that if the "appertura" is to succeed there be no misunderstandings at the He asks for a clear pledge from the Christian Democrats on the following points: the 19 self-governing regions prescribed by the Constitution must be set up without a preliminary pledge from the Socialists not to form local majorities with the Communists (although the Socialist Party does in fact intend to break some of these existing majorities if and when it enters the Government); the law presented by the Christian Democrat Minister of Public Works, Signor Sullo be passed without removing the clauses on the oblgatory expropriation of building sites near the big towns; a structural reform of agriculture be introduced abolishing the institution of share-cropping and reforming the powerful farmers consortium which at present controls agri-

These are hard terms for the Christian Democrats to accept, but they stem from the firm conviction which Sig. Lombardi shares with a good many Socialist leaders, that his party, unlike the Christian Democrats, has everything to lose should the opening to the Left be tried and fail.

Dief and

WHO'S TO LEAD

OPPOSITION leader John Diefonbaker has strengthened his hold on the Progressive Conservative leadership as the result of a forthright speech at the party's national executive meeting here last weekend. The final showdown will come in Ottawa on reb. 3, 4 and 5 when the party's annual meeting will be held. Those who are not happy with Mr. Diefen-

Mackie baker's leadership will make their position known at that annual meeting. But Mr. Diefenbaker with his call to Conservatives across the country to rally behind him in anticipation of an early general election, appears to have solidified his position. He bluntly told the executive meeting that he expected overwhelming vote of confidence at the annual meeting in February.

His vigorous speech won him a standing ovation from nearly 400 of the party faithful.

A move by Mr. Diefenbaker's ardent supporters to have the annual meeting's ocale shifted from Ottawa to Western Canada, possibly Winnipeg, was headed off by the leader himself. He cautioned that any such move would be misunder-stood and misinterpreted.

Early Election

Mr. Diefenbaker said he saw signs of an early general election. He said such an election might be called by the Lib-erals despite the indications that they ad the continuing support of the Social Credit members under Robert Thompson. He forecast that the Liberal government was preparing a program of social justice legislation to submit to the country immediately in advance of going to the country.

This warning of the imminence of a ms warning of the financiac of a general election was regarded here by Mr. Diefenbaker's opponents within the party, as good strategy from his point of view. If he worries the Conservatives were the brink to be the brink t into believing the country is on the brink of an election they will make no effort to change the party's leadership.

But if the rank and file of the Progressive Conservative party becomes convinced that the Liberals with the support of the Robert Thompson Social Crediters intend to carry on in parliament for two years or more, then they will start looking for a new leader. Consequently it is to Mr. Diefenbaker's advantage to predict an early general election, one Conservative source said here.

Not Happy

"There are a large number of people who are not happy with the present situation within the party. But they were not prepared at the meeting over the weekend to come forward and say so. They will get their opportunity at the annual meeting next February," he said.

He asked not to be quoted and pointed out that those known to be opposed to Mr. Diefenbaker continuing as the leader indefinitely were being eased out of key posts within the organization.

E. A. Goodman of Toronto, was chairman of the resolutions committee. He was critical of the former prime mini-ster prior to the general election last April. He has again been named to the committee but Conservatives were freely predicting Monday that he certainly would not be re-named chairman.

Mr. Diefenbaker has got two of his strongest supporters in key roles in the party organization. Gordon Churchill (P.C.-Winnipeg South Centre) is chairman of the party's organization while Richard Thrasher, former Conservatives, M.P. from Windsor, was named to the top administrative post of national di-

Gerald Waring ... REPORTING

OTTAWA - One thousand nine hundred and eighty-three columns ago I began writing this report from Ottawa.

This is number 1984—a number that has a certain connotation due to George Orwell's "1984." So perhaps it is appropriate that today I should write about Big Brother Hal Banks and his newly-acquired Bigger

At this juncture Mr. Banks scarcely needs introduction. He is well-known as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada. We are indebted to another author for a brilliant word picture of the man.

"Banks is capable, decisive, egocentric, intolerant and ruthless. He is of the of the Capones and the Hoffas . . . He is a bully, cruel, dishonest, greedy, power hungry, contemptuous of the law. In his mouth, the use of the word 'democracy' is sheer blasphemy . . ."

If Norris had thought of it, he might fittingly have compared Banks to Orwell's Big Brother: both ruled by brain-washing and intimidation.

Bigger Brothers are the government trustees who by act of Parliament now "manage and control" the SIU. They are Justice Victor L. Dryer of Vancouver, Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal, and veteran labor leader C. H. Millard of Toronto. For the next three years, should Banks last that long, they will be peering over his shoulder, because Parliament has given them the responsibility of seeing that the SIU is run in a free and democratic way.

Justice Dryer has an "open mind" on the SIU, he said—and inferentially on Mr. Banks. Dryer has not read the Norris Report. Anyway, he says, Justice Norris' recommenda-tions are "not binding" on the trustees. And he says he does not intend to fire Banks out of hand, as Norris suggested should be done,

"I consider anyone is innocent until he is proven guilty," Justice Dryer said. "The fitness of union officers to hold office will depend mainly on what they do from now on." Furthermore, Dryer said, the trustees won't remove a union officer unless he tries Well, said a reporter, would you say that the SIU is a free trade union?

"I'm not ready to answer that question," the chairman of the trustees replied

Dryer's attitude augurs for a policy of ing easy on Banks-at least until the inland shipping season ends about mid-December. By then the balance of the 60-million-bushel fall shipment of wheat to Russia should be safely on its way.

Dryer stated that the "urgent" job last week was to get the men back to work; that he was trying hard to keep this task separated from the long-term task of preserving free trade unionism.

Labor Minister MacEachen heatedly denied on Friday that he had made any deal with Banks. But he left wide open the question of whether the trustees had made a deal. If they have, it could hardly be more than a deal to get the men back to work. It is impossible to reconcile the retention of Hal Banks in office with the democratization of Dryer and his colleagues likely have realized that until the sailors on the grain-laden lakers are un-brainwashed, only some flagrant new action by Banks would be sufficient reason to depose him.

But Congress, riding to the rescue changed the law to permit the nurses to be registered as staff officers. It was one of Congress' finest hours.

It was, moreover, the type of thing that Rep. Jim Wright (D—Texas) apparently had in mind when he undertook to answer charges that Congress has been dilly-dally-

Wright conceded that it has taken Congress longer to do less than is normally the

to the thousands of interested people who came to the opening of University Village, Blair and Shelbourne, over the weekend. We wish to thank you for your kind remarks about the design and quality of construction of our homes and the community planning of University Village.

Because of the crowds, many people were unfortunately unable to see the homes, so we are extending our opening through this week, from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

So many people have liked our houses and are taking advantage of the $500.00 Winter Work Bonus, that we have less than 20 lots left.

Man Fined $250 For 'Disgraceful' Driving Example

Burnaby's Steen Could Raise Furore at AAU Parley

By Canadian Press

Years ago, when the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada ruled amateur athletes and sports with a mighty fistand this even included players in the Big Four Football Union its annual meetings invar-iably were explosive. The AAU had tremendous power and exercised it.

But its hold gradually loos ened and now it is boss of such fringe sports as fencing, wrestling and weightlifting, along with track and field, a pastime that has been showing signs in the past couple of years of beming a big spectator sport this country. Swimming broke away from the union years ago and rules its own

In recent years the annual get-togethers have been pretty tame. There have been interna squabbles, but nothing really serious.

Next month, the 70th annual meeting will be held in Win-nipeg. The three-day affair starts Nov. 7, and a brush-cut young man could conceivaby raise a furore. He is Dave Steen, a 21-year-old native of Burnaby, B.C., with great po-tential as a shot-putter of world class. Steen had some uncomplimentary things to say about the AAU and some of its of-ficials in Maclean's magazine earlier this month. He certainly didn't win friends among the men, all unpaid, who work to keep amateur sport alive in

The article didn't mention names but quotes Steen as saying he has seen cheating on record forms, judges "wit-nessing" events they hadn't attended, that track and field is on the move in Canada but "some of the old rot still ling-ers." He once lost a Canadian He once lost a Canadian record, he said, because "the head official told me through an alcoholic haze that I had to forfeit my throw because I'd started to move in the throwing circle."

There were other charges, And the AAU plans to look into the whole thing.

The union has set up a committee to investigate the charges and these will be aired at Winnipeg.

"He may appear at the Win-nipeg session, if at all pos-sible," one highly-placed official said this week.

"We only hope he'll be avail-about all of these charges. This matter is of great concern to the AAU." The official, who declined use of his name, said "I hope he hasn't talked himself out of a place on the Olympic team" in Tokyo next October. "It is hard to say what the repercussions will be.

"A person must be more than a good athlete to compete for Canada in such internasports as Olympic ambassador for Canada.'

Another point most likely to be brought up at Winnipeg is whether Steen, who finished third in the shotput at the 1962 British Empire Games in Australia, received money for the article.

"If he did, he may have talked himself right out of an amateur card," the official said. "And that would be really tough for him. We'll just have to wait and see."

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Half an hour before Canada's Olympic hockey team engaged in its "fact-finding" manoeuvre at Memorial Arena Saturday night it was mentioned to coach Father David Bauer that his boys always seemed to have the crowd with them.

"That's true," he said. But not tonight."

Because you are playing the kids? "Because they are juniors," he smiled. "But kids? You should see them."

Just then the door to the visitors' dressing room opened. Ducking their heads so they wouldn't be low-bridged came the new Ed-monton concept of recruits coach Buster Brayshaw hopes will retain the Memo-Brayshaw rial Cup. Beckoned from assorted Prairie and B.C. hamlets, the Oil Kings are a study in what sailors might describe as a menace to navigation . . . tall, rawboned, beefeaters all.
In their midst, Brayshaw

FATHER BAUER looked like somebody's little brother. In the dressing ... the spirit is there room the word is that Bray-shaw overcomes his physical handicap with a tongue that could peel paint off the HMCS Skeena.

Father Bauer, it developed, was right as October rain. When the Oil Kings scored their first goal, the crowd let out a yelp far louder than those preceding the Olympians' two earlies efforts.

. . . So Are Leafs Ham-and-Eggers?

In the press box and sprinkled through the house, a coterie of experts exercised their rights of free speech.
"If this is the best Father Bauer has," snorted an Edmonton journalist, "then we aren't going to win anything at hasbruck. Heck, the Lacombe Rockets beat them 3-2. And they're just ham-and-eggers."

(For the benefit of those who didn't take Advanced English, "ham-and-eggers" does not refer to the Rockets' dining room tactics but to their status in the hockey world.) In his outburst of national pride, the Edmonton expert (and other egghead critics) overlooked some salient points. The Olympians will have to beat the Swedes, Russians and Czechs at Innsbruck, not the Lacombe Rockets. And on any given night the best hockey team does not always win.

Only Sunday the world champion Toronto Maple Leafs were cleaned 20 by Boston Bruins, the best team in the American Hockey League.

At no time has Father Bauer made the cavalier assump tion that since hockey was invented in this country, red-blooded Canadians have only to step on European ice to win

His Only 'Crime'-'We're Contenders'

To say that his Olympians, together only two months, will likely defeat the Europeans whose international clubs are kept virtually intact from year to year would be sheer madness. And Father Bauer, "guilty" of being intense, dedicated, and a respected student of the game, has steadfastly committed only the 'crime" of saying "we can be a constant."

Against the Europeans, the Olympians will offer a fine attitude, good skating, and the sharpest defence possible. With a little luck here and there, they could get sufficient goals to make it to the top of the pile.

Until they played Edmonton Friday, the Olympians demonstrated their preoccupation with close checking. Noteam had more than 25 shots on the Olympics' goal (the Oil Kings took 32). Saturday the leaks in the dike had been plugged. Edmonton had a grand total of 16 shots on the net. Among other things, the Olympics will be the most edu-cated team to represent Canada overseas. Ten of the 21 players have degrees; 10 are working on them. This in itself may be quite a shock to the Europeans, accustomed to our exports of beef and brawn but not too much brain. In years past you could always tell how pleased Cana-dian Amateur Hockey Association officials were with our representatives by their availability for interviews. There weren't any. Like ghosts at Halloween, CAHA brass stayed

Impression on People Counts Heavily This year, CAHA president Arthur Potter is almost gar-

"The spirit is there," he said Saturday in between lighting his pipe for the 3,614th time. "They WANT to play. How else can you explain why 21 young men are prepared to take a year out of their lives?

"I looked over their quarters Friday with Father Bauer. An old army shack. They have been carpenters, cooks, dish washers. Together. Father Bauer calls this place The House That Jack Built.'

"Some people say that's a poor way to get a national team together. I don't agree. Neither does Father Bauer. They'va peared to live together, to work together.

Look. Fotter said, grinding his choppers on his pipe with enough force to reduce it to sawdust. "We can't lose,

Certainly the best team can get beaten on a given night. But these young men are going to do an ambassadorial job that has never before been done for Canada." Roll then all together . . . spirit, sacrifice, desire . and Canada could come up a winner. But winning Isn't everything. Sometimes the impression you make on the people is more important than the impression you make

GORDIE

It costs a pretty penny to outfit a National Hockey League player these days. Lefty Wilson, the Detroit Red Wings' trainer, tells me it figures out to something like $480 to outfit one player, including red jerseys, when we're play-ing at home, white jerseys when we're the visiting team.

As a youngster I can remember the time when the only equipment I owned were skates and a stick. I used magazines and those big thick mail order catalogues for shin pads. I'd tie them around my legs with rubber bands made from inner tubes.

Where those catalogues really came in handy was when we'd played what we called a little shinny game. There'd be 20 or 30 kids. We'd go up to the corner where the bus made the turn.

The fellow who drove the bus was very good to us. When we had a fresh fall of snow, he'd just keep running in steady circles and flatten and harden the whole intersection out, instead of just sitting in the bus, waiting to his schedule.

He packed it down so hard you almost could skate on it. We played with tennis balls, instead of a puck. * * *

Every so often during the game we'd exchange the tennis ball for a warm one with the woman in a neighboring house. She had five boys in her family.

She'd keep the tennis balls in the warming oven, thaw them out for us. Because when the weather is 25 or 30 degrees below zero, or even 15 below, those balls would get awfully hard and really could hurt someone. Later on when I was playing midget hockey, we won Saskatoon championship. We played Yorkton for the the Saskatoon championship.

Saskatchewan title. Rollie Howes owned a sporting goods store, was very good to all the kids. He said if I scored three goals he'd buy me a set of gloves. I scored five goals and we won 6-1. He not only gave me gloves but shin pads made of bamboo covered with felt and leather. I was really king.

At the heart of the matter is the highly controversial question of whether the role of the mother of Christ has been over-emphasized.

Some of the delegates feel that a separate schema might put undue emphasis on Mary and distort her role in the church. This group holds that by making the Marian document part of a larger topic on the nature of the church, the council could improve relations with Protestants.

If you buy life insurance now, you take full advantage of your youth and good health. Read how a London Life policy can actually grow with your family, and eventually provide for your retirement:

ON THE DAY YOU MARRY, your fiancee becomes both wife and dependent. You know life insurance will give her financial protection, but here are some facts you may not

(1) A London Life Jubilee policy is an unusually good investment. It is not affected by market fluctuations. It gives you guaranteed cash values and annual dividends. It is just as safe as high-grade bonds and much safer than

(2) You can take advantage of your youth and good health. If you are 25 and healthy, you can buy a $10,000 Jubilee whole life policy with annual dividends, for $13.09 a month. If you are 30, the premium is $15.27 a month. At age 35, the premium is $18.11 a month. Change to annual premiums any time you

(4) The London Life Insurance Company has had an outstanding dividend record over the past 50 years. Since 1951 the London Life dividend rate has been increased six times.

(5) One reason London Life dividends to policyowners are high is because the Company invests wisely and profitably. (In 1962, the Company earned 5.47% on its investments -after investment expenses.) Dividends on participating policies are declared annually. The dividends payable to London Life policyowners in 1963 will be more than $23 million.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Stupendous is only one of many superlatives which can be applied to the performance of Moscow State Circus on the Ed Sullivan Show Sunday.

For one fleeting hour we were subjected to, among other colorful specialties, a performing Russian bear, a dancing 51/2 ton elephant and wild-riding Cossacks.

To compare the Russian circus performance to the circus highlights on NECTV's weekly "International Showtime" would be folly. There is no comparison.

The Moscow State Circus acts went through their paces with a swiftness, definess and excitement which kept viewers on the edge of their seats.

The entire hour devoted to the performance was taped in England. This is a different troupe from the one currently touring the U.S., and which is scheduled to play at the PNE Agradome on Dec. It's a different circus from many others in that there only one ring and acts follow quickly on the heels

The highlights would have to be the performing bear, almost human in carrying out parts of its act; the huge elephant; the performance of a fox in company with a rooster, a cat and several white mice; the amazing jugglers and equestrians Dzerassa Touganova and Valeri Denisov.

It will be very difficult to surpass a televised circus performance of this calibre. Such moments are scarce.

On the other side of the TV ledger was the very boring and snobbish "April in Paris Ball," taped by NBV-TV in New York City Friday and telecast Sun-day. High society exhibited one of its private functions in a tasteless hour which looked as if it had been put together as a last-minute thought.

The performers struggled against great odds. Judy Garland's daughter, Liza Minelli, and Frank Sinatra Jr. were treated impolitely by the noisy gath-ering Lisa Kirk, television hostess, couldn't seem to generate much enthusiasm for her part in the affair. There has to be a reason for such a show but it escapes me at the moment.

An old friend made a welcome return to the living room Sunday in the person of Marlin Perkins and his "Wild Kingdom" series. Perkins and assistant fim Fowler began another season with a half-hour titled "Danger: Wild Animals." The pair showed that even experts must be alert and careful when working with wild animals.

The program has always gained attention through the style of presentation plus the amazing methods used by Perkins to show off the animals to best advantage. The breath-taking bit of action with the alligator was a prime example. Everything about the show is top bracket and geared for all members

(it's so reasonably priced)

Kind of leaves the high-priced cars some explaining to do, wouldn't you say? Long and luxurious - with a clean fresh-christened look that almost makes you feel somebody should be breaking a champagne bottle on its prow. Richer roomy interiors with subtle new blendings of colors and fabrics. And underlying it all, the opulent feel of Chevrolet's Jet-smooth ride - something some of the expensive makes would dearly love to claim for themselves.

Matter of fact, the most important and noticeable difference between this beautiful new 1964 Chevrolet and the highpriced cars is the price itself.
